

EMPLOYMENT, GROWTH, AND POVERTY REDUCTION IN DEVELOPING COUNTRIES

A CONFERENCE IN HONOR OF PROFESSOR AZIZUR KHAN

Professor Azizur Khan has made seminal contributions as both a scholar and policy advisor to expand employment opportunities and fight poverty throughout the developing world. The participants at this conference will explore the issues Professor Khan has grappled with throughout his distinguished career.

---

CONFERENCE PARTICIPANTS

Diana Alarcon, United Nations Development Programme
Lopamudra Banerjee, New School for Social Research
James Boyce, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Mark Brenner, Labor Notes
Achin Chakraborty, Institute of Development Studies, Kolkata
Anirban Dasgupta, Institute of Social Studies, The Netherlands
Gary Dymski, University of California, Riverside
Mwangi wa Githinji, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Keith Griffin, University of California, Riverside
James Heintz, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Mahabub Hossain, BRAC, Bangladesh
Amy Ickowitz, Clark University
Nurul Islam, International Food Policy Research Institute
Rizwanul Islam, International Labour Organization
Salim Jahan, United Nations Development Programme
Victor Lippit, University of California, Riverside
Arthur MacEwan, University of Massachusetts, Boston
Wahiduddin Mahmud, University of Dhaka, Bangladesh
Prasanta Pattanaik, University of California, Riverside
Robert Pollin, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Rushidan Islam Rahman, Bangladesh Institute of Development Studies
Mohan Rao, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Arslan Razmi, University of Massachusetts, Amherst
Carl Riskin, East Asian Institute, Columbia University
Binayak Sen, The World Bank
Eduardo Zepeda, Carnegie Endowment for International Peace

Friday & Saturday
March 27 & 28, 2009
9:00AM – 5:30PM

---

Gordon Hall
Conference Room
418 N. Pleasant Street
UMass Amherst

Co-sponsored by the United Nations Development Programme